Introduction

Recently, the offices which houses the Branch: Fisheries Management has had several confirmed COVID-19 infections and as a result, many departmental staff members have been in quarantine at their homes. Many of the infected staff members were employed in the Department's directorates responsible for providing services to the public such as the processing and issuing of fishing permits, across several fishing sectors. The Department is acutely aware of the effect that the absence of these staff members is having on the department's ability to provide fast and effective services to those affected stakeholders.
