Mountain Zebra National Park
The craggy heights of the Mountain Zebra National Park's Bankberg embrace rolling plains and deep valleys, and have become an entrancing preserve for the Cape mountain zebra. The proclamation of the park in 1937 saved these animals from extinction, and currently their population stands at 300 where they roam 28,412 hectares of land. Other mammals found here include the cheetah, Cape buffalo, black rhino, eland, black wildebeest, red hartebeest and gemsbok, while mountain reedbuck and grey rhebok frequent the higher areas. Activities that you can do at the Park include guided game drives, visits to the San Cave paintings, morning walks, the Salpeterkop hike and cheetah tracking. Bird watching is also excellent in the park, which is home to a myriad of avian species, including blue cranes and Denham’s bustards. Mountain Zebra National Park offers comfortable cottages, a guest house and camping grounds for you to stay in.
