CERTIFICATE OF INDEPENDENT BID DETERMINATION

1 This Standard Bidding Document (SBD) must form part of all bids¹ invited.

2 Section 4 (1) (b) (iii) of the Competition Act No. 89 of 1998, as amended, prohibits an agreement between, or concerted practice by, firms, or a decision by an association of firms, if it is between parties in a horizontal relationship and if it involves collusive bidding (or bid rigging).² Collusive bidding is a \textit{pe se} prohibition meaning that it cannot be justified under any grounds.

3 Treasury Regulation 16A9 prescribes that accounting officers and accounting authorities must take all reasonable steps to prevent abuse of the supply chain management system and authorizes accounting officers and accounting authorities to:

   a. disregard the bid of any bidder if that bidder, or any of its directors have abused the institution’s supply chain management system and or committed fraud or any other improper conduct in relation to such system.

   b. cancel a contract awarded to a supplier of goods and services if the supplier committed any corrupt or fraudulent act during the bidding process or the execution of that contract.

4 This SBD serves as a certificate of declaration that would be used by institutions to ensure that, when bids are considered, reasonable steps are taken to prevent any form of bid-rigging.

5 In order to give effect to the above, the attached Certificate of Bid Determination (SBD 9) must be completed and submitted with the bid:

² Bid rigging (or collusive bidding) occurs when businesses, that would otherwise be expected to compete, secretly conspire to raise prices or lower the quality of goods and / or services for purchasers who wish to acquire goods and / or services through a bidding process. Bid rigging is, therefore, an agreement between competitors not to compete.

1. PURPOSE

The Department of Environmental Affairs (DEA) seeks to appoint Service Provider to provide advisory services and technical support for the development of detailed delivery plans for enhancing the chemicals and waste based economy/ies of South Africa.

The purpose of the delivery laboratory is to develop systematic, detailed, and costed implementation plans for initiatives (Chemicals Management Economy, Municipal Solid Waste 3R Economy and Industrial Waste 3R Economy) that will catalyse the growth and developmental impact of the chemicals and waste sector as a strategic priority defined in the National Development Plan.

Service providers with the requisite expertise and capacity are invited to provide overall management, facilitation, secretarial, administrative, research and technical services for the chemicals and waste economy laboratory.

2. INTRODUCTION AND BACKGROUND

The government of South Africa adopted the Big Fast Results (BFR) problem-solving methodology which was developed and successfully implemented by the government of Malaysia. The BFR methodology facilitates the development of detailed plans with a strong theory of change, as well as strong monitoring, evaluation, reporting, and accountability frameworks which are essential for the successful implementation of national goals and priorities.

The Big Fast Results approach was adapted to the South African context to highlight the urgency of delivery the approach and it was renamed to Operation Phakisa (“phakisa” meaning “hurry up” in Sesotho). A key characteristic of Operation Phakisa is that the plans, indicators, and targets cover both strategy and implementation. Key stakeholders and critical decision makers convene for an intensive six to eight weeks, called “labs”, and produce detailed and measurable plans to “three feet” above ground level, as opposed to higher level planning.

South Africa is endowed with rich natural resources, but lacks measures and/or tools for effective transformation of its waste resource into goods and services for social and economic development. This shortcoming contributes to the current levels of poverty in South Africa (and Southern Africa). The South African constitution protects the environment not only for the present generation, but for future generations too through measures that promote conservation and secure ecologically sustainable development and use of natural resources while promoting justifiable economic and social development. Therefore, one of the key mandates of the Department of Environmental Affairs is to promote the chemicals and waste economy/ies as this would ensure that scarce natural resources are conserved.

The DST has in their 10-year Waste Research, Development and Innovation Roadmap, set the goal of growing the South African waste sector from its current 0.51% of GDP to 1-1.5% of GDP. Recycling promotes sustainable consumption of natural resources and unlock economic potential. Despite a total estimated value of R25 billion to the South African economy, the current rate of waste recycling has not been maximized. South Africa needs to accelerate the waste recycling economy, waste-to-energy economy and metal processing waste beneficiation with the view of unlocking economic opportunities in the waste sector.

In February 2016, at the annual gathering of the World Economic Forum (WEF) in Davos, Switzerland, the talk on everybody's lips was around the circular economy. It is a new way of seeing the way in which we manage our world at a time of increased resource scarcity. It is about the transformation of business models, and government-business-societal relationships through new technological innovation' and in the process creating jobs and catalyzing economic development.

The waste economy is linked to the different levels of the waste management hierarchy though recycling has maximum socio-benefits benefits. The discharge of the mandate of the department is to realise the constitutional right of protection of the environment and to ensure that the potential of economic growth in the sector is maximized, requires collaboration between and among all branches, and with various key stakeholders in the public and private sectors. This cooperation and collaboration can be achieved through the development of three feet plans that are outputs of the phakisa process. The scope of the phakisa is the (use and) commercialization and trade of the chemicals and waste, and of the products of different waste treatment technologies.

The waste economy of South Africa encompasses the businesses and economic activities that either directly depends on waste for their core business. The waste economy contains the formal commercial waste markets of South Africa, which recognises but does not include the informal waste economy as these markets are currently largely undetermined.

Both the waste recycling, waste-to-energy and metal processing waste beneficiation sub-sectors amongst others; of the chemicals and waste economy have already demonstrated the potential for significant future development and growth. Growth in the waste recycling industries and waste-to-energy industries can make a significant impact on the national economy, while contributing to national imperatives such as job creation and conservation of our natural resources. However, for these sectors to achieve their full potential, we require a strategic partnership between the state and private sector.

Multilateral Environmental Agreements (MEA) that are about protecting and minimising the impacts of chemicals on the environment and human health continuously bans and/or phase out the use of some of these hazardous substances. South Africa, being a party to these MEA is obliged to ban and phase out these hazardous substances. The phasing out of these substances provides an opportunity for South Africa to get into the market of developing alternatives and distributing to many developing countries that do not have capability to develop their own alternatives. So far, the opportunity has not been exploited and demonstrates a potential for significant future development and growth. Unlocking the economic potential for the development of alternative chemicals will be achieved through the development of three feet plans.

Currently, the informal face of the waste sector is represented by waste pickers that work in trying conditions of landfill sites. These waste pickers earn livelihoods to support their families. These workers are vulnerable to environmental conditions as well as economic climate. The volatile crude oil price also exposes waste pickers to unscrupulous “middle man” that tend to devalue the prices of recyclables. Currently, the South African government does not control the prices of recyclables though we have seen that some states in Brazil have opted to regulate these prices in order to protect waste pickers.

The dawn of Industry Waste Management Plans (IndWMPs) have also brought an added opportunity of diverting some considerable waste away from landfill. Additional IndWMPs for other streams need to come on line in order to maximise recycling rates for more waste streams. The country’s relatively low recycling rate is attributed to lack of waste separation at source and incentive schemes, and the absence of a coherent investment strategy on key interventions. The 3 feet plans that will result from the phakisa process would enable a leap in the recycling rate. The coordination and leveraging on the strength of various partners in the different sectors, particularly among national government, producers representing private sector and local government will be essential for the successful growing chemicals and waste economy.
Full-Time Participants
In order to ensure that holistic solutions are identified, the relevant stakeholders will participate in the lab. Approximately 120 participants, mostly from the National; Provincial and Local Government with roles in chemicals and waste management, as well as stakeholders from the private sector and social partners, will attend the lab on a full-time basis. The 120 participants will be allocated to at least four (4) work streams. The tentative work streams will focus on issues of enhancing economic growth in chemicals and waste management relating, but not limited to: (a) Chemicals Management Economy; (b) Municipal Solid Waste 3R Economy; (c) Construction and Demolition Waste Recycling Economy and (d) Industrial Waste 3R Economy.

Visiting participants
Approximately a further 40 participants will visit the lab during different stages, to provide technical expertise and inputs on areas pertinent to their functions. These participants will be drawn from various government departments, academia, chemicals companies, waste companies and agencies, and other organisations.

3. OBJECTIVES
